SEVERE BLOW TO CHINESE SCIENTISTS

New York, July 10.—Commercial use of Christian Science teaching was held by the appellate division of the supreme court today to be illegal.
The conviction of Willis Vernon Cole for practicing medicine without a license when he accepted fees for Christian Science treatment, was sustained. A lower court found Cole guilty of violating the public health law and Cole appealed. The highest court in its opinion, written by Justice Clark, today answered in the negative its previous decision.

"Is the commercialized use of prayer for the avowed purpose of treating all persons seeking cure for all kinds of bodily ills the religious teaching of a church?"
Although conceding with the majority opinion, Justice Laughlin expressed the view that Cole might have legally accepted fees if he had practised at his patient's home or in a Christian Science church.

POLICE ARE SEEKING JERRY WINNINGHAM

Edmonton, July 13.—The mounted and city police are looking for Jerry Winningham, charged with attempted murder on the person of W. J. Shirley, at Chertill, near Lac Ste. Anne, Alberta, July 1. The trouble is said to have started when Winningham swore at Shirley, who hit him and knocked him down.

Winningham got up and stabbed Shirley with a knife in the neck, stomach and shoulder, and Shirley came back at Jerry with a spade. Winningham is alleged to be 50 years old and Shirley young and strong.

The wanted man left his home at July 2 for Edmonton and the south. He bears marks of the fight on his head and face.

READY TO WIND UP FORMALITIES AND GET MONEY.

Ottawa, July 10.—Sir William Mackenzie and his counsel, Hector MacInnes, K.C., of Halifax, are here in connection with the winding up of the formalities for the $45,000,000 bond guarantee of the Canadian Northern.

A series of trust deeds are to be executed, but these are not yet drawn up, and Sir William said today that he did not anticipate the agreement would be closed for some days. The matter has been in the hands of Hon. Arthur Meighen, assisted by outside counsel.

There is a jolly fight over the election of a trust company to present the bondholder under the agreement. The National Trust of Toronto, favored in some quarters, is being strongly objected to in others by reason of the claim that it is allied to the MacKenzie & Mann interest.

C.P.R. CROP REPORT NOT TOO OPTIMISTIC

The Canadian Pacific Railway has issued one of the crop reports which are distributed to their various offices during the season. The report embraces the three western provinces largely interested in grain growing, and shows that of the three the prospects in Manitoba are by far the brightest. In Saskatchewan the prospects are very bright in certain sections. Areas in the south-east of Alberta and in the south-west of Saskatchewan are very poor.

In some districts included in this area it is reported that the crop will be practically a total loss. The extreme dryness of the spring accounted for this failure. The report states that in the northern part of Saskatchewan the crops had received enough moisture up to several weeks ago and were looking fine, but there is crying need of rain at the present moment, and if it does not come the consequences may be disastrous.

PREDICTS EARLY END OF ROBILIN GOVERNMENT

Toronto, July 11.—The Globe comments editorially on the Manitoba results as follows:
"The results of the election in Manitoba appears to be the continuation of the Roblin government in control of the public affairs of that province, but by a very narrow majority. This result leaves the fate of the parties somewhat uncertain, as there are three elections deferred, and at this writing three doubtful, where parties are evenly balanced, with three constituencies in which the elections have not yet been held, anything may happen, so far as permanent control is concerned; in fact it need cause no surprise if another election after a brief interval of uncertainty should be necessary."

"It is plain, however, that the Roblin administration will shortly come to an ignominious end. It has been for years an utterly and ineffectively organized, in fact the worst government that has ever existed in any part of Canada. With its passing will terminate the personal influence of Mr. Rogers, who organized and operated the Conservative 'machine' in Manitoba since the advent of the Roblin government. The influence he had that government were peccadilloes; but they have failed to provide Mr. Roblin with a safe working majority in the legislative assembly. It speaks volumes for the good sense of the people of Manitoba that even so much has been accomplished in the face of a situation so difficult."

REMARKABLE CURES FROM CONSUMPTION

Quebec, July 10.—Three rather remarkable cures have been effected at the shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupre, it is claimed. A Mr. Francois Xavier Dorton, of Rumford Falls, Maine, who had been ailing for some time past with tuberculosis of the right hip, was suddenly cured at the famous shrine on July 7. It seems that he had been unable to walk without the aid of his crutches for the past two years, and had gone on a pilgrimage to Ste. Anne's, in the hope of being cured. Mr. Dorton left his crutches in the church and walked out a perfectly well man.

Another cure on the same day was effected on Mrs. Peter Lacombe, of Ottawa. She had been lately ill with dyspepsia and had been feeling unwell for some time. This case, however, is not very certain, and the parish priest of Ste. Anne is anxiously awaiting word from the woman.

The most remarkable case was that of Mrs. George Marlow, of Watertown, N.Y. She had been very ill with palsy for the last six years, and had been condemned by several doctors, who stated that she would not be able to walk. As a last resort she went on a pilgrimage to Ste. Anne, and there she was cured of her palsy on July 24. She left her crutches behind her in the church as evidence of her complete recovery.

During the past six weeks some 25 cures are said to have been effected at the famous shrine.

HINDUS PLEAD FOR FOOD

Vancouver, B.C., July 10.—An appeal by the Hindus on the Komagata Maru for supplies of food to their counsel, J. E. Bird, has led the latter to write to the immigration officials, stating that as the Hindus are being held for deportation they are under arrest, and that it is therefore the duty of local immigration officials to send food aboard the ship, failing which they do so at their peril.

The question came to a head Thursday, when the appeal was received, couched in pathetic language and stating that they had not had anything to eat or drink for three days. As a result of the letter from Mr. Bird, the immigration officers went on board, their appearance being the signal for an inquest. The Hindus banished all sorts of weapons, and kept up a fierce tumult for a considerable time, though Mr. Hopkinson, one of the officials, addressed them in their own language, assuring them that everything would be done that was possible to allay their sufferings.

When about to leave the vessel, the voice of Dr. Raghunath, who is the regimental surgeon of the native army corps in Hong Kong, was heard shouting that the Hindus had threatened to kill him, and Gurdit Singh joined in an appeal to the officials to save them from the fury of their followers. Instructions were at once given to the Japanese crew to protect both of them, and an assurance was given that the order would be attended to.

The Japanese are well armed, and though, so far, they have not taken any measures other than peaceable, their appearance indicated that they are only waiting for the opportunity to carry out drastic orders in the event of contingency. The local Hindus are deaf to all entreaties from the press to send food and medicine, stating that they have already given too much, and that all they want is to see the Komagata Maru sailing out through the narrows with her human freight aboard.

AUSTRIA GIVES WAY TO THE C.P.R.

Vienna, July 11.—The Austrian government has withdrawn the prohibition imposed upon the Canadian Pacific Railway with regard to carrying on emigration business and its agencies are now free to resume the traffic.

The prohibition against the Canadian Pacific Railway last year was in consequence of allegations that the company's agents were assisting Austro-Hungarian subjects to evade military service by emigrating. Samuel Altman, the principal agent of the company in Vienna, was arrested last October on the charge of living Austrian emigrants to Canada, but was released after a parliamentary committee had inquired into the charges.

HUERTA'S GAME IS UP.

London, July 13.—The Daily Graphic, commenting on the reported intention of President Huerta to resign, says:

"Huerta's game is up." From the moment the rebellion had the sympathy of the United States, its ultimate success was assured.

The paper expresses the hope that President Wilson, whose policy now triumphs, will not forget the broad principle upon which that policy is based.

C.P.R. HAS SOVEL TRANS-PORTATION HERE IN VIEW FOR THE PRAIRIES.

Toronto, July 13.—The C.P.R. is reported to be arranging for the adoption on a large scale of a system of supplementary transportation by motor wagons in the prairie provinces which will practically bring the railway to the barn door of every farmer in its territory.

Every freight station will be made a depot for a "fleet" of motor wagons, of a type specially devised for this service, the number varying according to the size and importance of the district. It is expected that importation stations will have from 12 to a score of these cars in service. The cars which, owing to the nature of prairie territory, will not have to negotiate any heavy grades, are designed to carry about one-sixth of a railway carload of merchandise and are particularly adapted for the transport of grain.

The chief importance of this service will, of course, be in connection with the grain harvest in the autumn, but the belief of the railway authorities is that sufficient use can be made of the cars for delivering supplies to farmers and assisting in the establishing of homesteads on their land, to justify keeping them in service all the year round. Otherwise it is evident the investment would be hardly justified.

TWO THOUSAND ORANGEMEN IN CALGARY PARADE

Calgary, July 11.—Over 2,000 of the members of the Orange Order in Alberta assembled and paraded in this city today. It was the largest celebration of its kind ever held in this province, and the march of the Orangemen through the principal streets was witnessed by the major portion of the city's population.

Speakers were delivered by Acting Mayor Costello, J. Harvey Moore, of Edmonton, grand organizer; Rev. Marchmont Ing, Springfield, deputy grand organizer; Wm. Piper, P.G.M., Calgary, the oldest Orangeman in Alberta, he having been connected with the order for 65 years, and Alderman Crandell, first grand master of the grand provincial lodge.

In the speeches reference was made to the prominent part played by the Orangemen of Manitoba in the recent elections, Premier Roblin's policy of separate schools being strongly condemned. The whole tenor of the addresses was one flag, one language and one empire.

A message of sympathy with the Ulster movement and urging that they stand by their guns and win the day, was forwarded to Sir Edward Carson, Calgary Lodge, No. 2563, won the prize for making the best showing in the parade.

In the afternoon a very successful program of sports was carried through at Victoria Park in the presence of a large attendance of spectators.

ANOTHER GUY FAWKES

London, July 13.—Annie Bell, an elderly suffragette, was arrested in the famous St. John's Church, Westminster, last night. She was found seated in a pew where a candle was burning down to a fuse connected with a can of gunpowder. The same church was damaged by a suffragette last March.

WILL FACE MURDER CHARGE

St. John, N.B., July 13.—Special Policeman Frank E. O'Leary, who was shot last Monday by John Braman, 17 years old, while he was arresting him as a burglar suspect, died in the hospital here early this morning. He had been gaining apparently, but a change for the worse came late on Saturday. Braman will now face a murder charge.

PAVEMENT COLLAPSES IN STREETS OF PARIS

Paris, July 13.—In the central fashionable quarter of Paris yesterday, several street caves-in occurred after a heavy thunder storm. In the Place St. Augustin, not far from the spot where the taxi-car was unguined June 18, a portion of the roadway, about 10 feet square, collapsed. Traffic had been diverted from the neighborhood.

Other pits were formed in the Rue de Camartin and in front of the Opera Monique. No casualties are reported.

A section of the roadway in the boulevard Ney suddenly subsided tonight, and a taxi-car fell into the hole. Firemen succeeded in lifting the cab out and extricated two passengers, who had escaped with bruises.

RICHARD CROKER WILL RETURN TO SEEK OLD POST

New York, N.Y., July 14.—Richard Croker, the old-time leader of Tammany hall, will return to New York from Ireland next September and seek to oust Charles F. Murphy from the leadership of Tammany Hall, according to Harry W. Walker, confidential of Croker, who reached here today from a visit to Croker in Ireland.

"Big things are going to happen when Croker comes here in September," Mr. Walker said. "He has in his possession confessions that he is going to make public. These will have an important bearing on his fight against Charles F. Murphy, which he will vigorously renew."

DEPORTATION OF 40 RUTHENIANS ASKED BY CITY.

Ottawa, July 14.—The immigration authorities have received an application from the city of Ottawa for the deportation of 40 Ruthenian laborers on the ground that they have become a charge on the public. The charity branch of the city has been supporting them in cases of deportation.

The immigration officials are investigating as to what lines brought them to Canada, and then they will be deported. The steamship companies are responsible in cases of deportation within three years. Immigration to Canada is dropping fast and the present month will see a decrease of probably 75 per cent.

HALLUCINATIONS DRIVE CAPTAIN TO KILL FAMILY

Oran, Algeria, July 14.—Under the influence of an overpowering hallucination that Arabs were about to capture them, Captain Gousou, of the second regiment, foreign legion, shot and killed his wife and three children as they slept, and then committed suicide.

The captain left a letter explaining that he had been suffering from hallucinations for some months. Monday night a vision of his wife and children in the hands of the Arabs, being subjected to torture, recurred so vividly that he seized a pistol to kill them and thus save them from horrors worse than death.

On previous occasions, the hallucination passed, and he was contented by his dreadful deed. Overcome with grief he resolved to join his family in death and sent a bullet through his brain.

KRAFCHENKO MET FATE WITH CALM COURAGE

Winnipeg, July 9.—John Krafchenko, convicted murderer, was hanged at Winnipeg provincial jail at 6.59. He maintained his nerve and protested his innocence to the end, meeting death without a tremor.

His one time bravado had given place to a calm courage, which succeeded his penitence in the presence of his spiritual adviser, Rev. Bertel Henney.

In token of his complete conversion, Krafchenko, before the astonished eyes of his adviser, took an old battered spoon of ordinary make, and with this simple instrument picked the lock of his cell, giving this final proof that he wished he could very easily have made his escape.

The night preceding the hanging was spent by Krafchenko with his adviser wrapped in prayer. At 4 a.m., however, he had a severe fainting spell, from which he did not emerge until ten minutes before the time for his execution.

After his recovery he walked steadily to the execution cell and the hanging was accomplished by Arthur Ellis without the slightest hitch.

Krafchenko's remains were buried at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Brookside cemetery.

The starter sells for $27, which is a mere trifle when you take into consideration the bother it saves you, especially when you stop in a mud hole.

A case of peculiar interest occurred lately across the line. During a fire all means of escape were cut off except for the guests, there being no fire escape in the domestic room—not even a rope. One of the girls in jumping from her window, some 14 feet from the ground, broke her leg. She sued the proprietor, and was awarded $1,000 for injuries received, the judge claiming that he was liable in not providing a proper means of escape, even though he had been informed by a would-be official that it was not necessary. The same might happen in Lacombe, so get up your fire escapes.

JOHN DEERE IMPLEMENTS

Triple Gang with Horse-Lift

You Can Do 33 1/3 Per Cent More Work

Think of a man increasing his efficiency 33 1/3 per cent. Think of actually doing 33 1/3 per cent more work in a day than formerly. Think of doing all this extra work simply by adding another horse to your team. That is exactly what can be done with a John Deere Triple Gang. But that is not all. The work will be done with less strain and less wear on the horse and the man. In these days, when it is difficult to get help, any implement that will enable you to do more work with less man is worth having. Then think of the extra money saved. Do you know of any other horse on the farm that you can do 33 1/3 per cent more work with without increasing the expense?

GAINS 10, 24 TO 28 INCHES EVERY ROUND

The John Deere Triple Gang is made in two sizes, three 15-inch or three 14-inch plows, consequently, cuts either 36 or 42 inches. Consider what it means to turn a strip of ground a yard or more wide— a sheer gain from 24 to 28 inches every round over a two bottom plow of corresponding size. Ask information for the making.

RIMBEY - ALBERTA

THE BATTLE OF THE BOYNE

On February 6, 1690, Charles II. expired at Whitehall Palace, London, and his brother mounted the throne in the name of James II. The new sovereign, a professed Roman Catholic, was viewed with more or less suspicion by the majority of his subjects, and the events which stigmatized France in the very year of his accession were not calculated to allay the suspicion in which he was already held. Louis XIV. of France then appeared as a dangerous bigot and tool of the church. The liberties which French Protestants had enjoyed since the days of Henri the Great were suddenly withdrawn from them. Troops were employed to compel them to enter the fold of the Roman Church, and on those who refused to obey soldiers were quartered, who consumed their provisions, ruined their effects and insulted their women at pleasure. The doom for those who still held out was at least penal servitude in the galleys, if not the gallows and the scaffold. These events in France made an immense impression in England, for it was argued that Louis XIV. had done, James II. would do, if not given the opportunity. The occurrences of 1685, 1686 and 1687 went far to confirm the suspicions early formed in regard to the new sovereign of Great Britain, and by 1688 his encroachments on English liberty had so thoroughly aroused the spirit of the country that the leading men of all parties in the land invited the King's son-in-law, William III., Prince of Orange and Stadtholder of Holland, to come to the rescue of the religion and laws of England. The revolution of 1688 the cause of James II., as opposed by his army, led to France, and a convention parliament summoned without the royal writ, declared that his flight was equivalent to abdication, and assigned the vacant throne to his daughter and son-in-law, under the throne names of Mary II. and William III. Henceforth the name of Jacobites—from the Latin "Jacobus" meaning "James"—was assigned to those who upheld the cause of James II., as opposed to the Williamites, the supporters of William III.

As yet, however, William III. and Mary II. were King and Queen of Ireland in little more than name. That island was divided between (1) the Catholic "Jacobites," and the quasi-Irish descendants of the Anglo-Norman settlers, who had immigrated since 1170; and (2) the "Protestants," a term meaning the original Irish and the English-speaking colonists who had entered the country from England and Scotland in quite recent times, a class who owned more than four-fifths of the property in Ireland, and whose inferiority in number was compensated by their superiority in wealth and civilization. At this period the Lord-Deputy of Ireland was the Earl of Tyrconnell, a staunch adherent of James II., and an old Royalist veteran of the Civil War of forty years before, one of the half-dozen who had escaped with life from the merciless storming of Drogheda by Cromwell's army. Tyrconnell aspired to play the part in Ireland that Viscount Dundee was enacting in Scotland, on the eastern side of the Irish Sea. "To the lords of convention," wrote Claverhouse that spoke, "Ere the King's crown shall fall, there are crowns to be broke."

It was amid all this hurry and bustle of events at this critical period that James II. had raised "the bloody Claverhouse" to the Scottish peerage as Viscount Dundee, and that great soldier supported the cause of the deposed monarch with such skill and valor that his name and death are recorded as heroic. But the death of Dundee at the Battle of Killcrankie, albeit it was a Jacobite victory, in reality put an end to the Scottish insurrection, for the controlling and commanding genius of the rebellion was no more. Henceforth, for lack of a commander of Dundee's genius, there was no real danger from the Highland clans and absolutely no chance of a rising of the Lowland Jacobites in support of the mountaineers. In Ireland, however, the political outlook was alarming in the extreme to the friends of the Revolution; it was with good reason that to the day of his death Dundee had believed that formidable succor for his cause was about to arrive from Ireland and France. Tyrconnell invited James II. over from his refuge in France, and raising his standard with the motto "Now or never! Now and forever!" called his countrymen to arms. The whole Irish race arose in answer to the call, and they aimed at achieving independence—and Tyrconnell soon mustered a mighty though half-barbarous host. Louis XIV. of France furnished money, arms and officers, and James II., thus equipped, landed in Ireland amid acclamations, and held in Dublin a parliament of his adherents, in which he gave his assent to the "Great Act of Attainder," whereby between two and three thousand of the friends of the Revolution were attainted of treason, which meant that on capture they could be executed without trial or any other troublesome delay. The effect of this measure was to convert innumerable pious waters by the logic of events, to a belief in the lawfulness of resistance to kings. Meanwhile, the "Englishry" stood gallantly at bay in Londonderry. That northern city was besieged by James II.'s forces, and though reduced to the extremity of privation, its defenders hardly able to man the walls for very weakness, it held out for fifteen weeks until, on July 20, 1690 (three days after Dundee fell at Killcrankie), ships from England brought relief. The glory of Londonderry will live as long as the English language, but the cause of the friends of the Revolution did not cease to be perilled by the raising of the siege. The navy of Louis XIV. of France disputed the mastery of the sea with the allied Anglo-Dutch fleet, while the mass of Ireland was still strongly for the son of Charles I. William III.'s departure for the theatre of war in Ireland was made the occasion of an attempt upon England by the French in concert with the Jacobites; and on July 1 ("old style"), 1690 the allied Anglo-Dutch fleet was ignominiously beaten by the French at the Battle of Beachy Head; yet on the very same day, as it happened, William III. himself won a splendid and decisive victory in Ireland over James II.'s army on the banks of the Boyne.

William III. had landed in Ireland the previous month, with a large body of troops, who, when joined to those of his forces already in Ireland, composed an army of 36,000 well-equipped and well-disciplined men—English, Dutch, and French Protestants exiled for their religion from their native land. His father-in-law was able to bring nearly as many men into the field, and the two armies came in sight of each other on the opposite sides of the river Boyne, not far from Slane bridge, about two miles west of Drogheda. William III. was standing on the bank taking a survey of the enemy, two cheers standing next him were killed by a cannon-ball, and he himself was wounded in the shoulder, but, regardless of the hurt, with characteristic pluck, he went on giving his orders to his staff as if nothing had happened. At six o'clock the next morning, July 1, ("old style"), his infantry crossed over the Slane bridge, while he with the cavalry forded the river, amid a hailstorm of bullets—and the Battle of the Boyne began. The passage was forced after a sharp struggle, and the engagement soon became general. William III. showed himself wherever the fight was hottest; his sword in his left hand—for his right arm was crippled by the wound received the evening before—and after a sanguinary struggle James II.'s ill-disciplined Irish forces gave way. His French allies retreated in good order, while he himself, when he saw the day going against him, galloped off and made his way to the coast, reproaching his Irish troops with cowardice—for which they repaid him with the opprobrious nickname of "Sheenias-a-Caugh," which is translatable "Lucky Jim."

It was amid all this hurry and bustle of events at this critical period that James II. had raised "the bloody Claverhouse" to the Scottish peerage as Viscount Dundee, and that great soldier supported the cause of the deposed monarch with such skill and valor that his name and death are recorded as heroic. But the death of Dundee at the Battle of Killcrankie, albeit it was a Jacobite victory, in reality put an end to the Scottish insurrection, for the controlling and commanding genius of the rebellion was no more. Henceforth, for lack of a commander of Dundee's genius, there was no real danger from the Highland clans and absolutely no chance of a rising of the Lowland Jacobites in support of the mountaineers. In Ireland, however, the political outlook was alarming in the extreme to the friends of the Revolution; it was with good reason that to the day of his death Dundee had believed that formidable succor for his cause was about to arrive from Ireland and France. Tyrconnell invited James II. over from his refuge in France, and raising his standard with the motto "Now or never! Now and forever!" called his countrymen to arms. The whole Irish race arose in answer to the call, and they aimed at achieving independence—and Tyrconnell soon mustered a mighty though half-barbarous host. Louis XIV. of France

TUMOR IN THE STOMACH

Completely Removed When She Took "Fruit-a-Lives"

Newswoman, Ont., April 4th, 1913.
"Some years ago, I was sick in bed, and thought I was going to die. I had a growth in my stomach, which the doctors said was a tumor, and they said that the only thing to do was to go to the hospital and have the tumor cut out. I decided on operation although both doctors said it was the only cure. I said I would die before being operated on. At this time, my mother-in-law sent me some 'Fruit-a-Lives' and induced me to try them as she had heard of another woman who had been cured of a similar growth in the stomach by taking 'Fruit-a-Lives'."

"I began to take 'Fruit-a-Lives' with the happy result that they cured me. I have not been to see a doctor since and my health is first class. I recommend 'Fruit-a-Lives' every time I get a chance and I will be glad to have you publish this letter as some other people are suffering from the same trouble and 'Fruit-a-Lives' will cure her." Mrs. A. McDONALD.

next two hundred years, until after the death of Charles Stewart Parnell, the result of the Battle of the Boyne was to engender in the heart of the Irish people a spirit of hostility to England such as made a fair and fertile land, where the population is naturally intellectual, amiable and sociable, the most uninhabitable spot in Europe. Yet every dispassionate and Liberal-minded historian, however warm a well-wisher to Ireland he may be, must needs confess that however ill the event then proved to her, the Battle of the Boyne was at the time a decisive and immortal triumph for the great cause of English liberty. The English Revolution triumphed on the banks of the Boyne—a mere change of sovereignty. It finally transferred the ultimate decision in the state from king to parliament. What parliament had been in the 16th century, with the House of Lords predominating, that parliament became again in the 17th century, but with the House of Commons predominating—a body which firmly grasped the control over every branch of the administration. On the banks of the Boyne the forces of the English Revolution of 1688, itself a national protest against their hated domination, and on the banks of the Boyne their sinister forces were put to rout by the sword of William III., the chosen king of the English people.

"This England never did, and never shall,
Lie at the proud foot of a conqueror
But when it first did help to wound itself,
Come the four quarters of the world
And we shall shock them. Nought shall make us rue
If England to itself do rest. Let true."

The baseball game, marries vs. single men, was a good one and the single men won by a score of 11-6. Undoubtedly the best team won, but with practice the married men could easily reverse things. Another game will be played in the near future, and the single men had better beware.

The bad places on this road have been fixed at last, and this road is now the best in the district, bar none.

The annual Sunday school picnic will be held at Henry's lake on Thursday, July 23rd. Two prizes of $5.00 each will be given to a baseball and football game, other prizes for foot races, etc. Come, everybody, and enjoy the best picnic of the year.

Wittenburg News

The annual Wittenburg sports took place on the farm of Mr. Frizell, opposite the Wittenburg school, on Thursday, July 9th, and proved the most successful day's sport that Wittenburg has yet experienced.

The literary program came off first, beginning at 12.30, and proved a very interesting part of the day's proceedings. Mr. Aldridge gave a brief opening address, and Rev. Mr. Ashton also spoke for a few minutes. Next came the songs and recitations. Three patriotic songs were well sung by the young people of Wittenburg, entitled "The Maple Leaf," "Old Glory" and "O Canada." Songs were also given by the Gimlet, Benjamin and Wittenburg schools, and recitations by several of the young people of Wittenburg. Immediately after the program, lunch was served on long tables, and there proved, so far as food is concerned, enough and to spare.

After lunch came a football contest between the boys of Gimlet and Wittenburg schools. After struggling for half an hour neither side scored and the game was declared a draw.

This was followed by the horse races and, as usual, attracted considerable attention. The first place in the pony race was won by Dewey Simmons, with Moenman second. The horse race was won by Coverdale, with Rathwell second. The next horse race was a very exciting one. Coverdale, Steels and Couley each won a heat, and a fourth race had to be run, Steels getting the decision, with Conley second.

The foot races also proved interesting. In the girl's race under 8 years, Anna Brodersen was first, Marie Fallis second, and May Bodette third.

Between 8 and 12 years, Verna Cox first, Hildred Cumberland second, Pauline Archer third.

Boys' race under 8 years—Myron Taylor first, Nelson Cumberland second, Herchel Walton, third.

Between 8 and 12 years—Geo. Mottet first, Lincoln Eastburn second, Brazil Braden third.

Girls between 12 and 16 years—Mildred Willets first, Ethel Taylor second, Lucy Mottet third.

Boys between 12 and 16—Geo. Wilson first, Frank Lay second, Raynold Wetzel third.

Ladies' race—Ella Robinson first, Grace Rathwell second,

A party of land seekers, consisting of fifteen farmers from Washington, conducted by Rev. J. Wright, and accompanied by two representatives of the C.P.R., arrived last week and spent several days in inspecting available lands. The conditions and prospects of this fertile district, together with the luxuriant crops they saw on every hand, led every one of the company to secure the object of his visit before leaving. All the men being practical farmers, they knew a good thing when they saw it. It was therefore somewhat amusing to hear the quick report one of the company made to a local granular, or knocker, who was speaking disparagingly of the fertility of our soil. So applicable was the reply that we here reproduce it, hoping that it may have the same effect upon any others who may be suffering from the same complaint as our neighbor.

After God had finished making the rattlesnake, the toad, and the vampire, he had some subtle substance with which he made a knocker. A knocker is a two-legged animal with a corkscrew soul, a water-soaked brain and a combination backbone made of jelly and glue. Where other men have their hearts he carries a tumor or decayed principles. When the knocker comes down the street honest men turn their backs, the angels weep tears in Heaven and the devil shuts the gates of hell to keep him out.

BATTLE FOR PREMIERSHIP WHEN SIFTON STEPS OUT

Edmonton, July 13.—"The handwriting on the wall," which seems to indicate the early passing of "machine" politics in Western Canada, and which pictures the no distant downfall of the Roblin government in Manitoba, is not without its effect at the Alberta capital, and even at this early stage, the rumor is already being spread that there is to be an almost immediate shake-up in the provincial cabinet, followed by an election, which seems inevitable in view of the developments outlined.

Provincial boundaries, it is recognized in governmental circles here, never yet stemmed a wave of reform, and already, it is said, there is some uneasiness among the members of the Sifton administration as to just what may happen in the very near future. For some months it has been known that all was not harmony in the Sifton government, not because of any particular fault with the premier, but because of the fact that Mr. Sifton's early retirement is almost a certainty and the subsequent rivalry for the post between two or three members of the government. The narrow shave of Roblin in Manitoba, it is said, has brought, or is likely to bring, things to an early head, and it is declared here on what seems good authority, that within the next three months Premier Sifton will step down and out, and take a berth in London as the representative of certain financial interests, which have heavy investments in Canada.

Who is to succeed Sifton? That is the question which, it is de-government is attempting to show a bold front, while, on the other hand, the French-Canadian members, who incline towards Cross, are said to be as insistent in certain demands as were their compatriots in Manitoba. The result, it will be seen, is a condition of affairs much similar to that which Roblin had to face in Manitoba last week.

Another disquieting circumstance in government circles is said to be the agitation of the Social and Labor Reform forces. As of course, the investigation into the affairs at Edmonton has shown a most corrupt and demoralizing condition of affairs, in which several of the men who have done valiant service for the Liberal machine in Alberta have had their reputations rather soiled. In addition to that, the old Oliver-Cross feud shows signs of once more coming to the surface. The Bulletin, the Iron Trunk's personal organ during the inquiry showing a marked inclination to take a full out of the attorney-general when an opportunity was presented. Then, again, it is said that relations are very much strained between Mr. Oliver and Dr. Michael Clarke, his colleague in the Dominion house, and that these two are lined up on different sides in connection with the provincial premiership. Oliver favoring Stewart, while Clarke is strong with the Cross element.

It is also declared that Premier Sifton is anxious to relinquish his office at the first opportunity which is holding him in his fear that his retirement will mean a serious split in the party. But, even with that possibility, it is asserted on reliable authority that he is firm in his determination to withdraw from the government, that the choice of a leader is between Stewart and Cross, and that the party is so openly divided upon the selection of a man to fill the present premier's shoes that a break is inevitable, with the possibility of an early appeal to the electors.

ROBLIN GETS A LESSON.

Sooner or later it comes to all political parties in power—the turn of the tide. Sometimes governments are swept out with a rush on some unexpected and compelling issue; at other times they are swept out by the tide of popularity and then drift back into oblivion with the ebb flow. In Manitoba there was a combination of two causes to account for the near-defeat of the Roblin government, which retains power only by the barest of majorities, and which will govern the province for the next four years as the representative of the minority popular vote.

The compelling issue in the campaign was education, and the government's treatment of the Roman Catholics in reference to the schools. Almost the solid Orange vote of the province was polled against government candidates, and the result much to the credit of the opposition.

It is also the fact that the Roblin government had reached the crest of its tide of popularity and was due for the ebb. And it is also true that this state of affairs was hastened by the government's adoption of machine methods in the management of the political affairs of the province.

The Globe has no use for the political machine, and is not at all sorry that the Roblin government in Manitoba has had this close call. Machine politics will wreck the best political organization ever planned, if permitted to gain the ascendancy, and the Roblin government may thank its lucky stars that it is not today swept altogether into the discard by the people who, when they discover they are being "managed" by political bosses, rise in their might and assert their rightful authority.

NO SERIOUS OUTBREAK HAS YET OCCURRED IN ULSTER

LONDON, July 12.—On Saturday attention was directed to the fact that the correspondents in Belfast of the Liberal papers had declared that many stories concerning Ulster's warlike preparations were grossly exaggerated, while on the other hand, the Daily Mail and the Evening News allege the English Liberal press is deliberately attempting to conceal the real truth of the feeling in Ulster.

In this connection it is interesting to note what the Sunday Chronicle's Belfast correspondent has to say.

The Sunday Chronicle is widely read and is owned by Hulton, of Manchester, one of whose directors is Earl Derby, a great Unionist stalwart. The Hulton papers are almost all-pervading in the North of England as are the Daily Mail and Daily News in London.

"There is no anticipation of any serious trouble," wires the Chronicle's Belfast correspondent, "nor, perhaps any trouble at all, but on the other hand, a good many people appear to be satisfied that Unionist Ulster will have its way in the end."

"Yesterday morning Royal Avenue was basking in the sunshine and seemed like the main thoroughfare of any other city. I did not see in light summer gowns, were shopping, sandwichmen advertised excursions for next week, and traffic rolled across the river as usual. In the afternoon, however, the strong military flavor to which Belfast has become accustomed for Saturday afternoon, was apparent and men in khaki appeared in the streets. Belfast does not laugh at them or go to heroes over them. The city treats them with respect and they bear themselves in the same dignified spirit."

"In the afternoon there was a presentation of colors to the Nationalist volunteers, a Belfast regiment, and a good deal of activity on the other side. Military preparations go on steadily and has become woven into the life of the city, but while anything in the nature of prophecy can only be attempted at considerable risk, it seems clear that, for a moment in the determination now at this critical hour to bring about this solution. As a matter of fact, they had already made remarkable progress."

If you are a housewife you cannot reasonably hope to be healthy or beautiful by washing dishes, sweeping and doing household all day, and crawling into bed dead tired at night. You must get into the open air and sunlight. If you do this every day and keep your stomach and bowels in good order by taking Chamberlain's Tablets when needed, you should be healthy, bright, healthy and beautiful. For sale by City Pharmacy.

INTERESTING CONTROVERSY

Two or three weeks ago the "Globe" carried a long editorial condemning the "Canadian Courier" for an editorial which appeared in that paper in January commenting on the fact that the Grain Growers' Grain Company showed a profit of over 25 per cent. on its paid up capital, and that the profit would have been well over 50 per cent. had not the Co-operative Grain Company lost over $200,000 in the operation of the Manitoba elevators.

In its issue of March 14th the "Courier" returns to the charge, and in the course of an editorial has this to say:

"I do not mean to say, the most radical of them, that capital is the enemy of labor. I mean to say that capital is the enemy of labor. Now comes the Grain Growers' Guide, which says that the capitalists rob the farmer to whom they owe existence. For this it might be well to give a certificate of thanks to the capitalists and farmers, and have them divide which of them have more claim to be the supporters and creators and victims of the capitalists."

"At the time, they might as well have said a capitalist who has a $500 share in the Grain Growers' Grain Company on which he has made profits of 25 per cent. is a capitalist? If not, would he be one if he owned $10,000 worth of stock? Again, if a man owns his own house, and doesn't pay rent, is he a capitalist? If not, if he owns two houses and rents one, is he a capitalist?"

"If a labor union or a number of unions, own a labor temple, and the land under it increases in value just as wicked people's property does, sometimes, are they capitalists? In the Grain Growers' Grain Company, which some years ago bought a piece of real estate in Winnipeg and erected an office and printing establishment on it, it therefore is a capitalist. If that land now worth ten times what they paid for it, are they capitalists simply because they have appropriated the unearned increment to their own use?

"If it is right for a grain grower to earn twenty-five per cent. on his stock in the Grain Growers' Grain Company, is it right for a shareholder in a bank to earn sixteen per cent. (that is the average) on his investment? If a grain grower is justified (and the Guide says he is) in getting all the profit he can out of his grain company, are the thousands and thousands of shareholders in the banks justified in taking dividends of ten, eleven and twelve per cent.?"

"The vital distinction between a moneyed labor agitator and a wealthy grain grower, and a hard-working clerk who owns $5,000 worth of stock in a railway company, needs definition."

CRAZED BANDIT IS FOUND DEAD IN LONELY HUT

Quebec, July 10.—Joseph Morand, the demented bandit, who since he ran amuck with a gun and shot three men on Thursday, July 2, has terrorized the village and district of Villavert, in the county of Lotbiniere, was found dead Thursday in a hut in the woods, according to information received here Thursday afternoon by Provincial Police Chief McCarthy.

Morand's body was found by one of the posses of provincial police Rho, since the bandit did the shooting last Thursday, have been scouring the woods about Villavert armed with rifles, and prepared to take the desperado dead or alive. Whether the fugitive took his own life when he saw that he was hard pressed, or whether he died from wounds received in the fusillade which the police poured into the hut in which he was hiding on Tuesday, and before which he wounded Peter Brown, a guide in the employ of the police, is not yet known. The telegram conveying the information to Chief McCarthy is very brief, and it was impossible to get into communication with Villavert by telephone or telegraph. The telegram simply said:

"Morand found dead in camp."

OUR LUMBER

IT TAKES WELL

Yes, our lumber takes well with everybody who likes good, sound, bright, dry, well manufactured stock. That's because we're pretty particular and finicky ourselves when it comes to buying our stock from the mills.

We've found out that particular lumber buyers like to buy of a particular yard where particular care is taken to handle only particular goods.

That is why particular buyers like to trade with this particular yard.

We want your trade, and you'll be glad to give it to us after you once see how well we serve you.

ALBERTA OIL SITUATION IS DISCUSSED BY EXPERT

No greater authority on the geological formations of the province of Alberta could possibly be heard than Mr. Cunningham Craig, who addressed the Canadian Club, of Calgary, on June 9, 1914, on the oil fields of Alberta.

In January last Mr. Craig spoke to the Royal Colonial Institute of London on the same subject.

Mr. Cunningham Craig is a graduate of Cambridge where he took first-class honors in 1895.

Joining the staff of the British government geological survey the following year, he was sent to Trinidad in 1901. While in Trinidad he surveyed the oil fields of the island, and, as a result, Mr. Craig was satisfied that it was an oil field of considerable promise.

His predictions have been amply fulfilled for Trinidad today has wells flowing 20,000 and even 50,000 barrels a day.

In 1907, Mr. Craig left the government service and visited Trinidad before any surveys had been made. Here he was able to locate several successful wells.

Later, he surveyed the Barbadoes government.

In 1913, at the request of the Union government, he visited South Africa to report for them on the petroleum and oil shale prospects.

At present Mr. Craig is consulting geologist to the Burmah Oil Co., the Anglo-Persian Oil Co., and several companies in Trinidad.

He is a foundation member and also on the council of the Institute of Petroleum Technologists, also a fellow of the Geological Society.

His address to the Canadian Club of Calgary is as follows: Mr. President and Gentlemen: I esteem it a very great honor to be your guest here today and to have been asked to address you on the subject which is monopolizing the attention of so large a portion of the population, not only of this city, but of Western Canada generally, and I think it is all the more kind and courteous of your club to invite an humble individual like myself, whom so great a paper as the Toronto Saturday Night has stated that it does not wish to know.

However, gentlemen, I take heart and grace to address you in the hope that the worthy editor of that journal will, in the course of time, learn the difference between geology and engineering, and between oil work and metal mining.

Well, gentlemen, I must ask you to remember that I am a tongue-tied Scotsman who speaks with difficulty, who is more at home with the geological hammer than with the pen, and who is more at home on the hill than on a platform, and therefore, if what I have to say—and it is not very much, in what I have to say is given in a slow and halting manner, I hope you will excuse me. I am sure it is not necessary for me to recount to you geological details and to follow once again the process of reasoning which led me more than five years before I had ever seen Canada, to believe that oil fields would be found on the eastern margin of the Rocky Mountains.

I understand, and I take it, that you are all familiar with the main feature of the geological position, but quite without going into geological details, there is evidence which any man can see that we have in this country a great series of strata which contains the material from which petroleum can be formed. That it has been formed under certain conditions, the great asphaltic oil sands of Athabasca and the Peace river proved beyond the possibility of doubt. That under different conditions a lighter oil of paraffin base can be formed, is proved by the seepages on the Flat Head river and on Pioneer Creek, while the fact that oil can be struck in drilled wells, perhaps not in large quantities, has been proved by the recent work on Sage creek in British Columbia, and by the old Laramie wells.

When we study stratigraphy and find that the geological horizon of all these occurrences are practically the same and that the oil, whether asphaltic or the oil, Athabasca river, or of paraffin base on the Flathead, they come from practically the same strata, and when we find that the great flows of gas which warm the City of Calgary, and very efficiently too—I understand, come from the same formation, we are driven to the conclusion that these formations are worth exploring or, in terminology areas where they are buried deeply, if the requisite strata can be discovered.

Here we find the geological survey of Canada has done much of the work for us already, and in a manner deserving of all praise. I may digress for a moment, but I would like to pay a tribute to the work of the geological survey of Canada. I have done geological work for governments for many years, not only in the Old Country, but in colonial possessions, and I know how the government geologist is criticized and found fault with and how at the same time his work is coolly appropriated by the other experts without acknowledgment.

I should be very sorry to hear that anything of the kind had happened in this country, but I wish to say that working as I have variedly do on the large scale of six inches to the mile, I have found the work of Dr. P. P. Curran absolutely correct. (Ap plause.) The geological survey of Canada has shown up over a large part of the country where these anticlinal structures are to be found, and it is to be left to the drill to ascertain whether or not these anticlines contain oil in paying quantities.

I think it may be of interest to compare and trace the prospective oil fields of Alberta with oil fields in other parts of the world, and for this purpose I do not take any of the oil fields of America, but I shall take only oil fields of which I myself have an intimate personal knowledge.

Of course, every oil field has its own particular characteristics and peculiarities, but it will be found that each oil field has certain characteristics in common with other oil fields. Let us consider, then, in what these prospective oil fields of Alberta compare with other well-known oil fields in the world. We have here in Alberta that sand of cretaceous age, containing naturally sub-divided into certain groups, and three of these groups, the sweet crays, the Belly River, and the Edmonton formation, all have a chance of containing oil in paying quantities. They are separated by great thicknesses of parting and estuarine shales, which, by their nature, must be barren of oil. Here at once we find an analogy with the great oil fields of Trinidad, where we have a thick series of tertiary rocks, containing three well-known horizons, in which oil may be struck in quantities, in a series which is composed of alternating marine and estuarine sediment. In Trinidad, however, it is a different age, causing great difficulties in drilling, and we have a series of cretaceous age, hard and well compacted which drills away and well, if the well be properly located, but in Trinidad we have a rapid and extraordinary variation of the strata from point to point. Here, on the contrary, we find that the various geological groups maintain their characteristics over very wide areas. We find the great asphaltic oil sands of Athabasca and the Peace river, paralleled almost on as great a scale by the asphaltic sand of Trinidad and Venezuela.

To compare with Burmah. We have there an enormous thickness—some 10,000 feet of tertiary strata, and in 4,000 feet there are chances of finding a paraffin oil of high grade in paying quantity, but the variation of strata in Burmah is so frequent and so rapid that no satisfactory classification of the strata into groups has ever been accomplished, and in the west of Burmah we have light oils of paraffin base, distinctly resembling the oil from the Bingham well, but never so light. In both these countries, in Trinidad and in Burmah, we find areas characterized by the presence of coal seams, which work toward the landward side when the rocks were being formed, while in neighboring areas we find the same strata and geological horizons unimpregnated with oil, and not a sign of coal to be seen. Here, again, we have a perfect parallel in Alberta. Then, as regards geological structure, Alberta shows many features in common with some of the great oil fields of the world. In Persia, Baluchistan, Assam, Burmah, Trinidad, Venezuela and Colombia, we find the oil fields in the fractures in great mountain chains. Anticlines are common in all these countries, such as we have here, but as we pass from the hills we find the anticlines becoming gentler and more, symmetrical, just as we do in Alberta. Thus we find that Alberta has many features in common with some of those great oil fields. Then, again, there is the sharp, crumbling faulting, which has been held by many to be a disadvantage, but which we find in the western anticlines of the foothills, and which we find on very much larger scale in Persia. In that country and in that place in spite of the very sharp and complicated faulting, a field which I know very well there, there is a field in which no single oil well has ever missed oil, and in which they have recently had some difficulty in shutting down some of their wells to produce only 1,500 barrels a day. It has been said by many that there is too much faulting and dislocation of the strata in these foothill fields to allow them to be good fields. The answer to that is simply this, that in Galicia, in Persia, and in Burmah, we find over thrust faulting on just as great a scale.

We find, also, that if anyone has mapped an oil field carefully, on a large scale, that he will find faults running in all directions, and that they have had very little effect except merely locally. Of course, there are occasions when faulting may prevent the concentration of oil, but to condemn a field generally because there are faults in it, may be merely to admit that one has not examined it carefully enough, or that one has not appreciated the significance of the evidence. Thus, we find that Alberta has many features in common with other great oil fields in the world, and yet it has its own peculiarities, which it is the task of the geologist to decipher, and its own difficulties, which it will be the duty of the driller to overcome.

OFFICER OF STORSTAD MAY BE CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER

Ottawa, July 12—Lord Mersey, head of the commission which held the inquiry into the Empress disaster at Quebec is in Ottawa. His report in its entirety will be presented to the government tomorrow and thereafter the government will consider what action may be taken as a result of the findings. No opinion can be obtained tonight in government circles as to what the imputation of blame made by the commission will result in.

It is pointed out, however, that the findings of the commission in which blame is placed upon Tufenes of the Storstad, for the disaster, is not operative in the sense that it recommends or imposes penalties.

The commission was appointed simply to take evidence, to report and to make recommendations as to provisions for further safety at sea. The evidence and the findings may be taken as guidance for further action in the civil courts.

The guilty parties may be brought for manslaughter, but in such cases evidence would all have to be taken over again and it is conceivable that the finding of the court would not be in accord with that of the commission which has just reported.

The government will consider the report carefully before making up its mind as to what action will be taken.

KING AND QUEEN ARE INSULTED BY SUFFRAGETTES

Edinburgh, July 12—King George and Queen Mary, who made their last public appearance today in their Scottish tour, were subjected to a fresh insult by a suffragette while driving to St. Giles cathedral to attend morning services.

Just outside the cathedral a Dundee suffragette, Olive Walker, broke through the spectators and police lines and ran toward the royal carriage. She hurled a rubber ball to which was attached a label inscribed "Stop forcible feeding."

The ball landed on the lap of the Queen, who laughingly brushed it aside. The woman was arrested amid a threatening crowd, but later was released.
